

Chaitanya Kalbag
Editor
Business Today

Chaitanya Kalbag is currently the Editor of Business Today at the India Today Group. He has been a journalist, editor, manager and publisher for over 35 years.

In his last assignment as Publishing Director with LexisNexis India, he was responsible for publishing most of India's most storied and high-value books in the Legal, Tax and Regulatory fields. His work brought him in close contact with legal scholars and the most prominent members of India's Bar and Bench.

Prior to LexisNexis, Kalbag was Editor in Chief of Hindustan Times, India's second-largest English newspaper. In February 2007 he won the Shiromani Award for excellence and leadership in his profession. Kalbag returned to India in September 2006, capping a strong six years as Managing Editor of Reuters News across 35 Asian countries stretching from Afghanistan to New Zealand.

Kalbag was the first Asian to rise to one of the most senior editorial positions at Reuters (founded in 1851). He spearheaded all print, online, picture and television news coverage between 2000 and 2006.

Kalbag won the Rajika Kripalani Young Journalist Award in 1977, the Sanskriti Award for Journalism for 1982, and the India Today-PUCL Human Rights Award in 1983. He was included in An Anthology of Bombay Poetry, 1977.
